Rotating Course - Call for papers 2020-2021

The Halbert Centre for Canadian Studies will consider (on a competitive basis) providing assistance in the sum of up to 15,000 Canadian dollars, in order to bring a group of students (up to 1500 Canadian dollars per Student) from a recognized Canadian university to the Hebrew University, or send a similar group of students from the Hebrew University to Canada for the purpose of attending a short course in the field of theoretical sciences. The course should be a result of the cooperation between one lecturer from Canada and another lecturer from the Hebrew University. The course must be accredited for higher education.

The request should specify the course's field of study, the significance of the group's travel to the specific target (for example, visiting destinations relevant to the course, lecturers at the destination university, or research collaboration between the two universities), the attending lecturer from Canada or Israel, and the number of attending students. The proposal should include the course syllabus approved by the lecturer of the Hebrew University, the Dean and the host department's approval of their ability and readiness to host this kind of educational activity.

The request must specify the administrative arrangements of such visits. For example: accommodation arrangements, insurance, and security arrangements in the case of courses including tours.

The proposal must also specify additional funding resources for the project.

It is recommended that the accommodation arrangements at the Hebrew University be handled by the Rothberg International School. For details, contact Mr. Eric Sranovitz:
